

Green Light to Talk

“Green Light to Talk empowers our people to speak up when they need help. We want to increase awareness around support available and positively promote the importance of conversations.”

Dorothy Hisgrove, PwC's Chief People Officer

In Australia,
one in five people will experience a mental health issue in any given year.

“Normalising conversations about mental health is good for our people, and our business.”

Kristin Stubbins, PwC's Mental Wealth Program Lead

The stigma associated with mental health often means people don't recognise what's happening or will be too afraid to ask for help.

At PwC, we are committed to ending this stigma. Our mental health awareness campaign, 'Green Light to Talk', will launch on World Mental Health Day in October, and we'll be giving our people green ribbons so they can show support for mental health awareness and encourage open conversations.

We have a range of support available for our employees, including our trained human capital community, a wellness team, mental health partner advocates and our employee assistance program - CARE.

Find out more by asking your PwC contact,
or visiting pwc.com.au/mentalwealth